“Art belongs everywhere” This has been the mantra of Helen Webber since she began her career in the 1970’s creating hundreds of art works for public spaces throughout the United states and abroad. Helen’s recent works are a combination of pastel, paint and ink, with poetry that dances around the image to create wonder and thought for all the senses. Helen is in her 90’s and has been an activist for women and children’s rights all of her adult life. Her recent works are currently being exhibited at the West Marin Senior Services Gallery of Art, through March 1st.
